Chelation Support (45 vcaps)

£34.90

Chelation (Key-lay-shun) Support contains DMSA (Dimercaptosuccinic Acid), which has a high binding affinity for heavy metals such as mercury, in the body.

The chemical process that takes place in chelation is such that the heavy metals bind to the chelating agent and may then be eliminated through the body.

Where do heavy metals come from?

Mercury is used in amalgam fillings and as a preservative in medicines such as: anti-biotics, diuretics, haemorrhoid and skin creams as well as contact lens solution, although this has mostly been phased out now. However with regard to amalgam fillings the US Food and Drug Administration have had to finally admit that dental amalgams may have neurotoxic effects on the nervous system. But they have only gone on to qualify that this is with regard to pregnant women and their babies (June 2008).

Other heavy metal exposure that is often found is lead, cadmium and arsenic.

This product should be used with respect (3 times a week), used as a course of treatment and not on an on-going basis

DMSA can also remove minerals from the body which is why we recommend taking it with Multi Support.

Suggested Use:

First month: 1 capsule every other day with 6 Multi Support (3 times per week).

Second month: 1 capsule every day with Liver Support (2) and Multi Support (6).

Take on an empty stomach with a glass of water or juice.

CAUTION: If nausea, vomiting or a rash occurs, decrease the frequency or discontinue use.

This product was made in a GMP and ISO 9001:2000 registered facility.
