L-Tyrosine (100 vcaps)

£21.90

Amino acids have numerous functions within the body, they are the building blocks for all body proteins that build muscle, connective tissue and bones. In most circumstances the body is able to synthesise L-Tyrosine in sufficient quantities from another essential amino acid, phenylalanine, combined with dietary sources obtained from animal and vegetable proteins. However, levels of L-Tyrosine can be lowered by the use of contraceptive and HRT drugs, placing a larger demand on the body.

L-Tyrosine is the precursor for the synthesis of catecholamines (dopamine, norepinephrine and adrenaline) which support stress response mechanisms. Supplementing with L-Tyrosine may have a mild anti-depressant effect.

L-Tyrosine also acts as a precursor for the synthesis of the thyroid hormones, thyroxine (T4) and triiodothyronine (T3). These hormones are synthesized from thyroglobulin, a protein rich in tyrosine residues that reacts with iodine. Thyroglobulin functions as storage for thyroid hormones and once released act to increase oxygen consumption and basal metabolic rate.
